

Grey Wolf

by:Joe Ruch

Body part the grey wolf uses to move.

It uses its legs to move. They can run at speeds of 25 to 35 miles per hour for short bursts while chasing prey.

Body part the grey wolf uses to control body temperature

It uses its fur. Adult wolves can regulate their body temperature and can adapt to different climates.

Body part the grey wolf uses to get food.

Its mouth with large, sharp teeth is its best hunting tool. Its jaw can crush up to 1,500 pounds.

Body part the grey wolf uses to support itself

It uses its skeleton to support itself.

Adaptation #1

The grey wolf uses its teeth and claws for hunting.

Adaptation #2

The grey wolf has good hearing and sense of smell.

Other adaptations:

Their fur is a great insulator

Their eyes are great for night vision

Fun facts about the grey wolf

1. Average lifespan is 5-6 years
2. They live in packs of 5-8 members
3. They are part of the dog family
5. They will eat 20-30 pounds of meat in one meal.